AT COCKING

The Blue Bell is a safe place to visit

Read on for how we are protecting you and our team and observing the current regulations.

We can only have a restricted number of customers, (maximum 6 per table inside or out) and tables are spaced to respect social distancing requirements. Please enter by the front door to be taken to a table. When seated please provide your contact details on the form provided and scan the NHS app. If you book in advance this will make it much easier for all of us and more efficient for you.

Our team will be wearing visors or masks for your safety and theirs during service.

There is a suggested one-way system inside the building to minimise social contact. It is signed on the floor. Your help and support will be appreciated in following the signage.

Inside everyone must be seated, so for those of you who have booked a table, you will be taken directly to your seats. Strict queuing guidelines will be observed for anyone waiting inside the pub, to ensure social distancing for other arrivals. There is also outside seating in the patio and garden areas

Hand sanitisers are placed around the pub for customers and staff. Everyone is encouraged to use these frequently. Keep hands clean and safe.

Tables have been repositioned to ensure correct distancing so please do not move them as these arrangements are helping us manage social distancing.

Staff will be completing regular and additional cleaning routines on all surfaces and in the toilets, so nothing is left to chance.

All menus will be cleaned after each and every use and remember contactless payment is preferred.

Toilets are available inside; this is be on a “one in one out” basis and please use the hand sanitiser before and after – it makes sense!
